

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

THE CAREERS
SERVICE

Oxford University
Careers confidence programme
for schools & colleges

"Creative and fun... Very engaging"

- Teacher

www.ignite.ox.ac.uk

Ignite for Schools is a programme for secondary school PSHE lessons, to instil greater self-knowledge, -confidence and -assertiveness in students, to help them with their career planning.

It has been developed by The Careers Service at the University of Oxford, following research about career confidence in secondary school students.

Four modules are available:

1. Understanding yourself
2. Asserting yourself
3. Networking & connecting
4. Marketing yourself

Each module is available in versions adapted for Key Stages 3, 4 and 5. You can choose to teach entire modules, or pick and choose lessons individually.

Each lesson is offered in a 20, 30, 45 and 60 minute version, and is designed to be taught with ten minutes preparation. Teachers can project each lesson on a whiteboard, or deliver the lesson plan from their laptop.

To find out more and to try out the programme, please visit www.ignite.ox.ac.uk.

“Lesson went really well. Activities short and meaningful. Awesome first use of this site.”

- KS3 Teacher

“Great resources and great idea”

- KS5 Teacher

“Made a dry topic fun”

- KS4 Teacher

“The range of activities and topics across the various lessons kept the class motivated, engaged and learning. I found it a fantastic resource”

- KS3 Teacher

SUPPORTED BY:

gsa

Girls'
Schools
Association